

Familiar with the challenging requirements on board

We finalise your projects successfully by applying a selective combination of engineering, science and extensive knowledge of the marine industry.

mission

Providing high quality and independent services for the marine industry

clients

Ship owners, manufacturers and authorities

team

Interdisciplinary experts of engineers and scientists connecting worldwide

quality

Systematic work according to international quality standards

Ankron Water Services GmbH

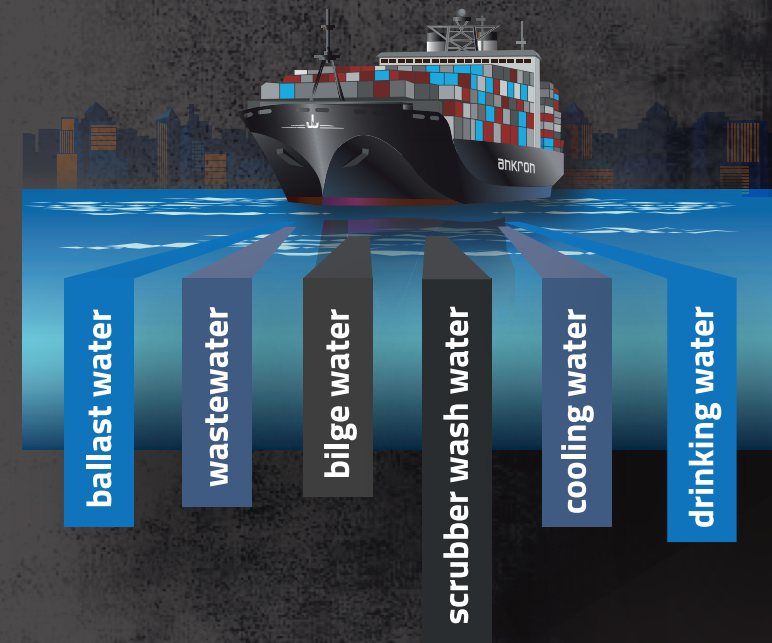

Am Ries 29 · D - 27612 Loxstedt
+49 (0) 176 - 314 30 683
mail@ankron.de

www.ankron.de

Independent water specialists
for the marine industry

We help you treat water right.

We help you treat water right.

We are an experienced team with multidisciplinary expertise in maritime and land-based water technology.

The aim of Ankron is to offer high-quality consulting and testing services based on experience, knowledge and a globally established network.

Consulting

We competently advise you on all questions and aspects of water treatment and support you in your required approval processes.

Testing

We execute various approval, commissioning, compliance and prototype tests and provide a wide range of test procedures, sampling and analysis in cooperation with our international partners.

R & D

We supervise your research projects and development processes applying broad scientific knowledge and longtime experience.

Individual services

Specialised and client orientated services have become very important at the interface between manufacturers, authorities and end users in the market.

We provide customised services and solutions according to your needs.

